ASG Security Summit & Expo Introduces Key Note Speaker Rob McKenna

Washington State Attorney General to address government's role in the 2020 Security Roadmap.

Seattle, Washington — January 22, 2010 — Aronson Security Group (ASG) announced today that Attorney General Rob McKenna has been selected as one of the key notes that will address the ASG Security Summit & Expo as part of its theme “The Great Conversation.” His speech will address the role of government in developing and deploying security and safety policies to combat crime and reduce risk in the next 10 years.

As the 17th Attorney General for the State of Washington and the State’s chief legal officer, he is responsible for directing 500 attorneys and nearly 800 professional staff that provide legal services to state agencies, boards, and commissions. In 2008, he was named one of Security Magazine's Top 25 Most Influential People in the Security Industry.

“Rob McKenna once again leads by example” said Phil Aronson, CEO of Aronson Security Group. “With businesses and communities attempting to deal with increased cyber and physical security risks, we need government officials like McKenna to help us intelligently transform how we think about security. The manner in which we partner with federal, state, and local government organizations toward a strategically unified public/private protection will improve risk outcomes.”

“I am pleased to join the Great Conversation,” said McKenna. “It is important that all public and private sector leaders understand the interconnected opportunities for improved public safety and critical asset protection. Continuous security improvements will require no less than broad community risk awareness, effective intelligence, caring leadership, innovative practices, research, and measured solution results.”
