Aronson Security Group Names New Director of Business Development

Nigel Waterton to lead Executive Relationships

Seattle, Washington — October 8, 2009 — Aronson Security Group (ASG) announced that Nigel Waterton has been named Director of Business Development in Washington State.

“At ASG, our goal is to assist clients in creating alignment between their organization’s goals and vision as well as their security mission,” said Phil Aronson, CEO of ASG. “Forming trusted relationships with our client’s executives is key to accomplishing that goal. Nigel has proven that he understands the needs of an organization and its key executives. Whether they are the CEO, the CFO, or the CISO, Nigel has the ability to bring together these disparate viewpoints into the common vision needed to deliver on our promise of improved value.”

Before joining ASG, Waterton held the position of General Manager of the Pacific Northwest for Protection One, one of the largest and most respected monitored security services in the U.S. As General Manager, he held total responsibility for the success of Washington State from an Operations, Sales, Marketing, and Financial perspective. This included budget development, implementation of marketing and sales strategy, and detailed P&L analysis to ensure the region continued to grow and run profitably.

According to Waterton: “I am excited to have the opportunity to bring clarity and insight on how executives can add meaningful value to their organizations through strategic security alignment, process and cost optimization, and innovative enterprise level solutions.”
