Aronson Security Group Names New Vice President of Engineering and Professional Services

Scott Schmidt to lead Next Generation Security Service Offering

Seattle, Washington — November 24, 2009 — Aronson Security Group (ASG) announced today that Scott Schmidt has been named Vice President of Engineering and Professional Services.

Schmidt has over 25 years in the IT and Security Integration market. His experience spans Business Process Management, Enterprise Security Architecture and Workflow, Database and Application Integration, and product benchmarking of physical and logical access control, video management, voice and IT middleware products. He has spent the last 4 years as a Senior Partner of a security program management company.

“We have been offering security development and engineering services for some time,” said Phil Aronson, CEO of ASG. “However, we believe it is time to provide a more targeted level of services around workflow and communications, increasing the value of security and providing valuable intelligence around performance.”

“Scott has a proven ability to work with IT and Security executives to establish a strategic roadmap for Security,” said Robert Flynn, Senior VP of Operations for ASG. “His knowledge and experience dovetails perfectly with our plans to provide organizations intelligence surrounding their security that allows them to effectively measure the performance of their people, process, and technology over time, helping security take its rightful place within the mission and vision of the organization it serves.”

“ASG is one of the few organizations that have the vision and leadership to transform the value of security,” said Schmidt. “Over the next 100 days we will be introducing some compelling services to selective executives that have the leadership to create the next level of value in security.”
